Please join me at my FREE
online workshop:
Writing With a Through-line Plot
(or Storyline)

The second FREE workshop in the “We’re All in It Together” workshop series

If you were able to attend the first workshop, you know we came together as a writing community and covered the nuts and bolts of harnessing isolation and overcoming writer’s block. It was great! So great, I’m doing it again. Let’s come together again—I love hanging out with writers. Want to join me?

Here are the details about this FREE one-hour workshop “Writing With a Through-line Plot (or Storyline)” on May 16th at 1 p.m. Eastern time. We’ll talk about through-line plotting (crucial) and how it relates to creating an opening that kills it (also crucial). If you’re interested, sign up here, and I’ll send you what you need to access the workshop.

Until then, I hope you’re safe and well, and that you’re finding solace and comfort through reading and writing.
